

INTERNATIONAL OBSERVATION NETWORKS

MOE is part of the following international observation networks:

OIE Network - Electoral Observation and Integrity Network

The OIE Network, formerly known as the Lima Agreement Network, is a platform of 17 civil society organizations from Latin America and the Caribbean. It is fully committed to strengthening democracies in the region, conducting electoral observation, and promoting fair, free, and transparent elections.

MOE leads the General Secretariat of the OIE Network.

GNSEI - Global Network for Securing Electoral Integrity

GNSEI brings together leading international actors in democracy to develop and promote adherence to norms and guiding principles that address emerging threats to electoral integrity.

The OIE Network is part of the Steering Committee of GNSEI.

GNDEM - Global Network of Domestic Election Monitors

GNDEM aims to ensure genuinely democratic elections, promote representative, responsive, and transparent governance, and strengthen the capacities of regional networks and non-partisan electoral monitoring organizations through knowledge exchange.

The OIE Network is part of the member organizations of GNDEM.

EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT THE ELECTORAL OBSERVATION MISSION - MOE

Colombia

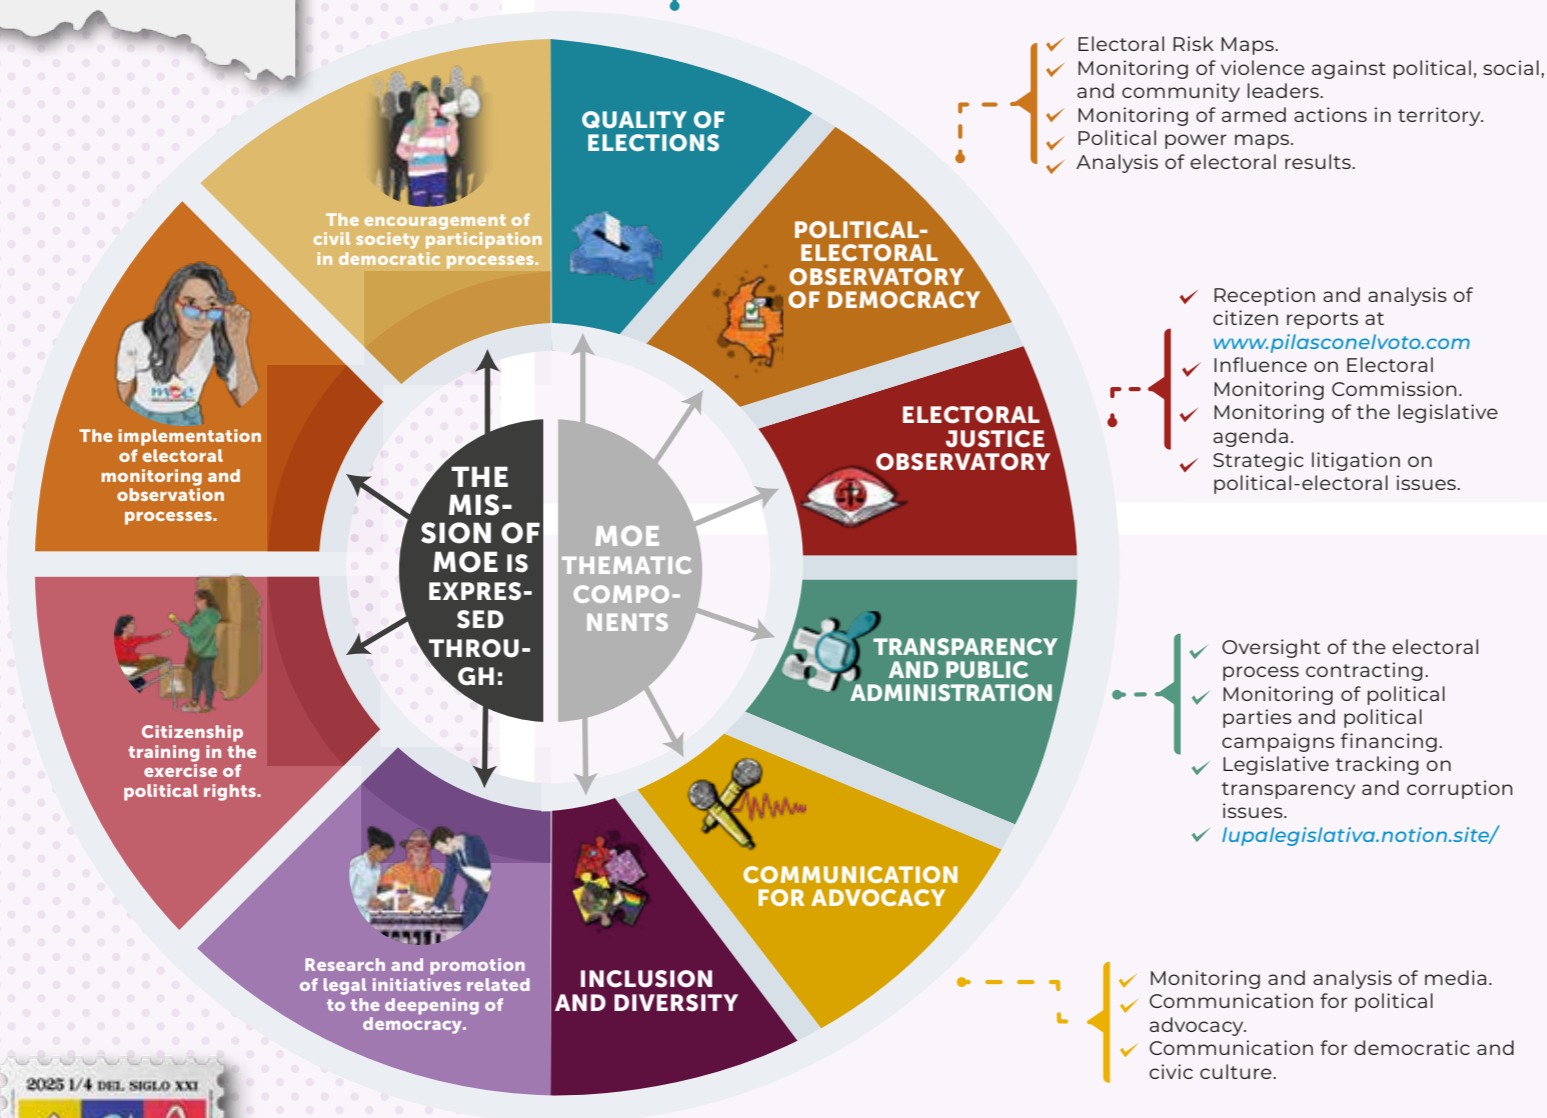

What is MOE?

The Electoral Observation Mission (MOE) is a civil society platform in Colombia, independent of the government, political parties, and private interests. It promotes the fulfillment of the right of all individuals to participate in the formation, exercise, and oversight of political power.

In addition to being recognized as a multicultural organization, MOE is explicit in its deep conviction to defend the political rights of historically excluded populations, such as women, ethnic groups, the LGBTIQ+ community, people with disabilities, among others.

Since its creation in 2006, MOE has been actively involved in promoting civil and political rights and developing reforms aimed at expanding democracy and strengthening the capacities of electoral institutions.

Today, we are a platform that brings together more than 500 civil society organizations, contributing to the country's democratic capital.
